MONTGOLFIER'S HYDRAULIC RAMS,

WITH BIRKINBINE'S PATENTED AIR AND WATER CUSHIONED VALVE,

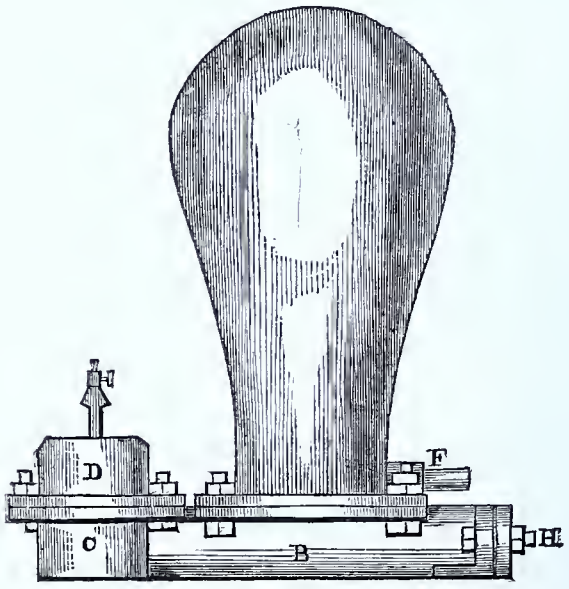

Fig. 2.

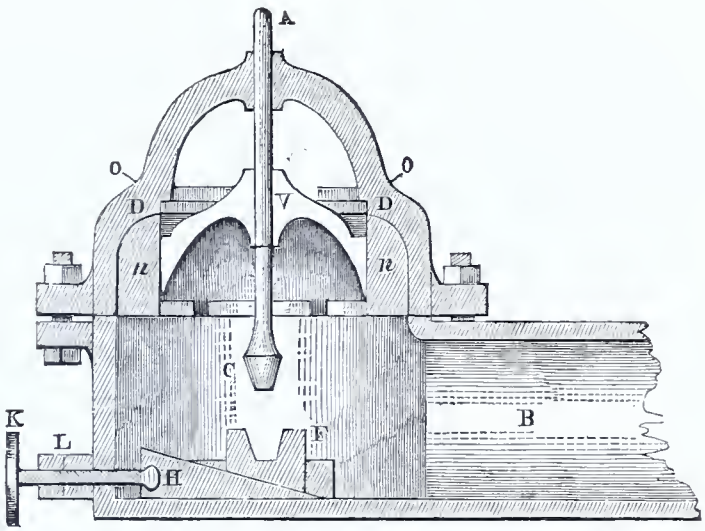

Patented, August 15, 1848,

Whose claim is, First, the construction of the Valve D, (see fig. 1,) so as to enclose a Water Cushion, O, (fig. 2,) between the moving and stationary parts, V and D; and also the Cup, or Air Chamber, within the valve V, to relieve it from the shock which it is otherwise subject to.

Secondly, the Safety Valve in the Diaphram, or Piston, in Double Acting Rams.

We have now over Five Hundred Hydraulic Rams in successful operation. The Philadelphia Agricultural Society awarded us the First Premium, in 1846, and the Franklin Institute, in 1847,—since when we have greatly improved our Rams, in construction, durability and effect.

By the above improvements, we have succeeded in constructing the largest Rams ever attempted, which are now in successful operation.

Persons wishing Rams sent to them, by measuring the amount of water their brook or spring affords per minute, the head or fall they can procure, the elevation to be overcome, and distance to be conveyed, can have the proper Ram and Pipe sent them with directions for putting it up. If the supply be unlimited, the amount of water required should be stated.

The expense of a Ram and necessary Pipe is so small, as to be within the reach of every one; in most cases being less than that of a well and pump.

RYLE'S SPOOL SILK,

EXPRESSLY FOR SEWING.

To avoid the many inconveniences attending the use of the customary skein, the above article has been much, and for a long time wanted, and the slightest examination will be sufficient to satisfy any one of the numerous advantages it possesses over the former. Among these advantages may be classed the following.

1. The consumer wastes no time by winding or reeling the silk, and suffers no loss in the tangling so common to such operations, and the vexatious trouble of disengaging the thread, when tangled, is entirely avoided.

2. The country store-keeper will have, at the end of the year, his unsold stock in good condition, thus escaping the injury to two or three pounds, which in retailing by the skein, he generally finds at the end of the season to be so mixed and intermingled as to be utterly worthless. And

3. The salesman, instead of losing any time, as is always the case, in selecting a certain colour from a parcel of a hundred or more skeins, will require but a moment to find the spool of the colour or shade he is in search of.

This sewing silk is manufactured by JOHN RYLE, Patterson, N. J., and is warranted to be equal in quality to any Italian Silk in the market, and in price quite as cheap. It is put up in the different lengths of twenty and thirty yards—a dozen spools forming a box—fifty boxes a case. The colours are well assorted, and cannot fail to suit all purchasers, being of the greatest variety.

For sale only by the case of fifty dozen spools, by

TESTIMONIALS.

I have used a strop prepared with Haynes' Diamond Powder, and can attest in the most unequivocal manner that there is nothing can be found that will produce the same effect, in my opinion, and most cheerfully say to others, try it, and you will find it superior to any thing heretofore in use: I can truly say that I never knew what a sharp Razor was before.

Comfort in Shaving.—Having tried the Diamond Powder, sold by A. Bennet, No. 18 South Fifth Street, find that it possesses qualities far superior to any thing we have ever used, and cheerfully recommend it to the public as the most valuable article for setting a keen, smooth edge to Razors, Surgical Instruments, &c.
